CME Architects is an architectural design firm specializing in Residential, Hospitality, Corporate and Commercial projects. Craig Mitchell, Matt Bouchard and Erin Fullam bring a combined 50+ years of experience in all aspects of architectural design and practice. CME brings their expertise to a diverse group of projects and clients, while maintaining the intimate feel of a small firm. Craig, Matt, Erin and their entire staff work closely with the client to assure that their needs are not only met, but exceeded.

History

After owning and operating M&R Design Associates since January of 2004, Craig Mitchell co-founded Golemme Mitchell Architects (GMA) in the spring of 2011 with Kevin Golemme. M&R Design was strictly a residential design firm which Craig wanted to expand to include commercial projects. GMA quickly grew from a four-person firm to a ten-person firm. In the fall of 2016, Kevin left the partnership to start his own firm, and the company restructured as CME Architects. Craig is a 70% shareholder of CME.

Erin Fullam was hired in the fall of 2005 by M&R Design to assist with production of residential projects. In the last fifteen years, Erin has developed into the firm's senior residential project manager, communicating directly with homeowners and developers, drafting and designing projects, and working closely with the staff to guide them through their projects. She has a thorough understanding of structure and the process of creating a complete set of working drawings. She is praised for her skills by both homeowners and contractors. Erin is currently a 10% shareholder of CME.

Matt Bouchard was hired by GMA in the summer of 2013. Matt brought with him several clients he had worked with for years and a great deal of experience in the commercial field. He handles an array of project types including retail, hospitality and corporate buildouts. Matt is registered in the states of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine and Rhode Island as a professional Architect. Matt leads the commercial side of the office by overseeing the day to day operations. He is a 20% shareholder of CME.

Services

Since its founding, CME has worked on several multi-family residential projects, including apartment buildings and condominiums. We expect that this business segment will continue to grow in the coming months and years, as we now have several projects in the initial stages.

No matter what the sector of CME, there are several general services that go into most projects:

- Meeting with the client and establishing an initial scope of work. Getting a feel for their wants, needs, and expectations.
- Developing a proposal, putting in writing our process and spelling out the fees involved.
- Beginning the design process and developing the plans with the client until they are happy with the result.
- Drafting Construction Documents to comply with all state and local codes. Final Documents include coordination with engineers and any consultants relevant to the specific project.
- Construction Administration to ensure that the design intent is met and that the work is being completed until the client is satisfied that their vision is realized.

These tasks will vary from job to job, but generally these are the processes being performed on a daily basis at CME.

The pricing structure will vary depending on the amount of time spent on each of these tasks. For instance, the residential sector will rarely require the construction administration phase, unless the project consists of a multifamily dwelling. The coordination with engineers and consultants varies between each sector and each job.
